Is Workday working for YOU?

With hundreds of customizable features within the Workday suite of products, very few organizations are able to grasp the full functionalities of the cloud based software.

At Keyseries, we approach these issues head-on, and implement solutions to help YOU achieve the maximum return on your investment.

The Keyseries Effect

Keyseries is a premier IT solution & digital technology firm founded in 2009, headquartered in North Haven, Connecticut. In today's rapidly dynamic business environment, we are helping our clients adapt and keep pace with the change, making technology a transparent interface for companies like yours. Our client-focused solutions combine the right balance of quality, reliability, delivery and value.

Workday tenant...

Implementation

From Finance to Human Capital Management, the Keyseries team has the skills and expertise to implement and configure Workday to begin working for you. Our core competencies include Talent & Performance Management, Budgets, Recruiting, and much more.

Production Support

Our firm can reduce an incredible burden off your team by supporting all aspects of your Workday Operations. Keyseries experts can provide you with trouble shooting help on a short-term basis to iron out any kinks that may happen immediately after implementation. We also possess the technologies to serve as an extension of your team by providing regular, long-term support for your ongoing workday operations. This way, you're able to rely on the expertise of our IT team, without increasing your headcount.

Low Cost + High Impact Solutions

Our goal is to provide you with the very best configurations to streamline your Workday experience while keeping your costs low and achieving incredibly high impact solutions for your operations. While a tech savvy employee or two may think they know their way around the software, it's rarely as simple as they expected!

Keyseries has the technical expertise to have your most important organizational tasks comprehensively streamlined within Workday. Remember, every man hour saved adds to your organizations bottom line.

Optimizations & Automations

Once you're live on Workday, it's time to start realizing the immense opportunities there are to provide value to your organization. From benefits tracks to employee and manager self-service, many operations with the Workday software can be completely automated, presenting your employees with an incredibly intuitive interface to carry out your most important business processes. We have regular weekly status meetings with your assigned Customer Success Manager to ensure the continuity and accountability of your Workday tenant.

Release Management

INTERESTED IN WHAT'S NEW WITHIN WORKDAY?

The Keyseries team diligently monitors the Workday semi-annual release cycle to provide you with the latest cutting edge technology.

- Monitor and analyze the "What's New" lists
- Identify key features to address pain points in current processes
- Facilitate regression testing and impact analysis
- Prototype and present new functionalities to business user

Data Audit & Cleanup

Big data is becoming an incredibly important tool businesses use to make business decisions and analyze operations, amongst a plethora of other applications. Many organizations face major challenges in keeping this data accurate and usable for their purposes. Fortunately for you, the Keyseries team can look into unlimited amounts of data to find the most useful pieces for your business. From there, we're able to analyze, clean, and maintain the most accurate data you wish to see.

Change Management

Change can be daunting, but it doesn't need to be.

Our experience shows that it's incredibly important to start change management techniques as early as possible, to insulate future hiccups that may occur, disrupting operations. At Keyseries, we pride ourselves in taking our customer through the entire process of implementation. Our team of experts are able to develop multi-channel communication and training plans to deal with the confusion that may come with large operational changes, as well as an all-inclusive support system to guide you through the first 3 months of implementation.

Project Management

Successful implementation and deployment of a project like this require both application and non-application activities to be executed flawlessly. Additionally, complete coordination between our team, the client's main project team, and key stakeholders create a streamlined experience for everyone involved in this process.

Annual Maintenance

ARE TAXES AND YEAR-END PAYROLL A PAIN? LET US HELP.

Tax documents and year-end payroll are two incredibly important processes that usually require highly trained and specialized individuals to complete, per government standards. The high stress nature and complexity of these documents can often lead to small human errors that begin to compound and create massive problems for organizations. Keyseries is able to run mock tests right before your annual maintenance cycle to ensure all your operations are smooth and effective. Not only does this save you from running into costly mistakes during an already stressful period, we strip the need of hiring tax professionals or payroll specialists, as it can all be completed within the Workday software.

Consulting & (Wo)manpower Expertise

Our dedicated team of consultants listen to your organizational goals, focusing on our range of post deployment services to provide top-notch technical and analytical expertise to your organization. We work to understand every facet of your business to provide you with unmatched consulting recommendations that align with your current business processes. We use the latest and greatest practices in technology to drive value and growth within your organization.

Why Keyseries?

Keyseries thrives on Workday. We understand that going live with your new system is only the first step in a long partnership with Workday and its ecosystem. Implementations are fast and furious, with reports, dashboards, and knowledge transfer often postponed until after a go-live. In most cases, your implementation partner would have already moved on to its next project. However, this is where Keyseries brings value to the table: to bridge the gap for those clients wanting to better maintain and enhance their system post go-live.

It is important for you to have an engaging partner that will be there every step of the way. Whether we are backfilling a turnover situation or helping navigate the ever-changing Workday landscape, we want you to know you can depend on us. As part of our commitment to engagement, we offer services that help you become Workday experts yourselves.
